

Quality, Safety, Occupational Health and Environmental Policy

General Environmental Conservation Public Company Limited

General Environmental Conservation Public Company Limited (GENCO) is a joint venture company between the Ministry of Industry and private sector, established under government policy to provide industrial waste disposal service in order to reduce pollution problems from industrial waste which impact on the environment and public health.

GENCO, as the provider of environmental management, has strong intention to do business with focus on quality, safety, occupational health and environment by following the guidelines for compliance.

1. To conduct business in compliance with safety, occupational health and environmental law and the requirements of the management system standards.
2. To provide systematic service to our customers from their factories to the final disposition with standard transportation. Our service emphasize on quality service, safety, occupational health procedures with the environmental impact concern.
3. To prevent environmental effects from operation and other activities with using resources efficiently.
4. To sustainably improve and prevent an accident from chemical, conflagration, industrial waste and other operations that may cause injury and illness to employees and stakeholders.
5. To continuously improve and develop our performance to eminent quality, safety occupational health and environmental service.
6. To enhance quality, safety occupational health and environmental awareness training programs for employees and stakeholders to create awareness in the workplace and shared responsibility.
7. To establish a good relationship with recognition surrounding communities and willing to disclose this policy to public.

Shall be deemed to run the company must comply with the quality, safety and environmental performance. This is a shared responsibility of all employees at all levels. The management earnestly support with all necessary resources to make this policy achievement.

Announced on 19th January 2012

Asst.Prof. Ronnachai Tantragoon
Managing Director